GOP BALLOTING UNDER WAY

Louis H. Brush Dies

LONG CAREER IN NEWSPAPER FIELD CLOSED

Brief Illness Fatal to One of Brush-Moore Founders and Board Chairman.

Louis H. Brush of Salem, chairman of the board of Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., and a lifelong newspaperman, died this morning at 10 in Hahnemann hospital at Philadelphia. He was 76.

His death was the result of a cerebral hemorrhage suffered early Wednesday morning in the apartment of a friend, Henry A. Hurst.

Mrs. Brush and their grandson, Thomas Stewart Brush Jr. of Marion who arrived by train in Philadelphia early this morning, had visited Mr. Brush before his death, but were not at the bedside when the end came. They were accompanied by Mrs. Mary Dunn of Salem, a close friend and neighbor.

Mr. Brush was attending the Republican national convention and was occupying the apartment with a Mansfield friend, C. F. (Ted) Routzahn. When he was stricken, Dr. Carroll F. Haines was summoned and Mr. Brush was removed to the hospital, where he was placed in the care of Dr. G. Harlan Wells.

Mr. Brush spent as comfortable a night as his condition would warrant but he took a sudden turn for the worse this morning and died shortly after a doctors' consultation.

His sudden illness and death came as a shock to his host of friends over the country. He had been in reasonably good health and, as always, was exceedingly active.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but it is expected the body will be sent back to Salem Friday.

Lifelong Newspaper Career

Mr. Brush spent a lifetime in active newspaper work, dating from his days in school and college, rounding the turn of the century as owner and publisher of his first small city daily, coming in later years to the presidency of Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., in which seven publications are grouped.

The son of James Alpheus and Amelia (McCall) Brush, he was born Jan. 24, 1872 at Alliance. His mother and father each served for many years as professors at Mt. Union college, winning national recognition as Ohio educators. An uncle, Dr. O. N. Hartshorn, was the founder of the college and for him the Mt. Union stadium was named.

Bound by such ties, Mr. Brush was a loyal, generous and energetic alumnus. He became a trustee of Mt. Union some years ago, served also as its treasurer, and on Oct. 20, 1938 the college conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Graduate of Mt. Union

He received his early education in the public schools of Alliance, enrolled at Mt. Union and was graduated in 1890 with a degree as bachelor of arts. The college publication, "The Dynamo," of which in turn he was editor and business manager, gave him inspiration to follow a newspaper career as it has to many young men who in similar capacities followed him.

His first work after graduation was with the Alliance Review as a member of the circulation staff. His brother, Harlan W. Brush, was business manager of the paper. A year later, in 1893, he became circulation manager of the Ohio Sun at Youngstown, the newspaper predecessor of the Youngstown Telegram which in turn (in 1938) was merged with the Youngstown Vindicator.

Became Manager at 22

In 1894 the owners of the Salem News, occupied in other pursuits, needed a manager for the newspaper and Mr. Brush, then 22, impressed them with his energy and capacity. They engaged him at a salary of $12 weekly, with the understanding he could buy an interest in the News. This he promptly did, associating himself with Dr. T. T. Church and John R. Vernon in the ownership. Three years later Dr. Church and Mr. Vernon sold their shares to Mr.

NEW GATES CRASHED AT RAIL CROSSING

Motorist Drives Into Guard After Short Operation.

Crossing gates and automatic flasher lights installed at the Erie railroad crossing on route 98 east of Marion Tuesday were crashed after 24-hours operation. Corporal Tom Morgan of the local state highway patrol station today reported.

"The gates, installed at the dangerous crossing by the state highway department and the Erie railroad after many months work, were crashed after 24-hours service last night," Corporal Morgan reported. "Some unthinking motorist crashed the north gate, breaking it off, during the night," he said. Breaking of the safety device was reported at 6 a. m. today by an Erie engineer who had passed the crossing on an eastbound train last night.

The crossing, scene of many accidents, is just north of the Five Points on route 98.

TAFT REMAINS CONFIDENT OF HIS VICTORY

Insists Dewey Lacks Enough Votes as Balloting Time Nears.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, June 24 — Senator Robert A. Taft insisted doggedly today, as the hour for balloting approached, that he will win the Republican convention's presidential nomination.

He declined, however, to specify where he expects to obtain all the 548 votes needed to capture the nomination.

The Ohioan said that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey did not appear to have more than 400 votes. Taft claims at least 300.

The Taft headquarters would not make public its plans for luring the necessary extra votes from other delegations.

While the senator's managers boasted they had stopped Dewey, they still had the problem of how to win for their own use the block of votes claimed by delegations with favorite son candidates. This may involve some trading.

Ohio Republicans, who futilely sought a presidential nomination for an Ohioan in 1940 and 1944, submitted Taft's name last night. Senator John W. Bricker, who captured the vice presidential nomination in 1944, made the nominating speech.

Praises Taft's Record

He declared that "the congress, the nation and the world are indebted" to Taft for his leadership in the 80th congress.

He described Taft as the congressmen's favorite for the presidential nomination.

Bricker referred to "the magnificent record of the 80th congress" as Taft's record, and added:

"It was he who has picked out the fallacies of the President's proposals and clearly revealed them to his people, a President who has promised to protect the public interest and has given his every effort to the building of partisan power for the New Deal."

Bricker's speech was followed by a demonstration of Taft rooters which lasted 36 minutes, as compared with the preceding Dewey demonstration's 22-minute run in convention hall.

The demonstrators paraded behind a band singing the Taft campaign song about the four-leaf clover.

Others Join In

They were joined by delegates from other areas, carrying the standards of Florida, Montana, Texas, Kentucky, Arizona, Utah, Alabama, Colorado, North Carolina, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Wyoming, New Mexico and Alaska.

The marchers released huge balloons with "Taft-for-President" streamers. They blew horns, clanged bells and carried placards, reading "Win with Taft," "Top Man for Top Job" and "Let's Save What's Left with Taft."

The 44 Ohio delegates pledged to Taft cheered lustily and joined in the festivities. The nine Ohioans pledged to Harold E. Stassen for president got into the Stassen demonstration an hour later.

Although the Taft managers hoped to win over the Stassen delegates from Ohio, one of them indicated he was not favorable to the Taft banner.

The delegate, who said he is considering a switch to Dewey, is Chester K. Gillespie, Negro of Cleveland.

Gets Television View

Taft saw the convention nominating session by television at his campaign headquarters in the Benjamin Franklin hotel.

Mrs. Taft went to convention hall and told reporters on her return that "the Taft demonstration was wonderful."

Just before going to bed at 12:30 a. m., Taft said he had conferred by telephone again with Gov. Earl Warren of California. He declined to talk about the conversation. Warren has said the California delegation will stand by him (Warren) indefinitely.

COAL DEADLINE SET

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 24—The government fixed a late afternoon deadline today for John L. Lewis and soft coal operators to reach a peace pact. President Truman's inquiry board reported "considerable progress toward a complete settlement" in the suddenly active negotiations.

RUSSIA CUTS SUPPLY LINES

Western Zones in Berlin Isolated in New Action Over Soviet Money.

By The Associated Press

Russia cut off electric power and rail shipments of food and coal to the western zones of Berlin today. The water supply was affected in part of the French zone. It was the most drastic step yet taken by the Soviets to force the U. S., Britain and France from Berlin.

In Warsaw, Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of Russia and foreign ministers of seven states of the Russian sphere made plans for a separate government in eastern Germany. This was the reaction to the western powers' agreement to establish a semi-independent government in western Germany.

The new pressure in Berlin stemmed from the Russian effort to force her currency on all Berlin as the only valid money. The western powers refused to accept the Soviet decree. They brought their own new currency into the western areas of the capital.

Council Validates Both

The Berlin German city council declared both moneys valid. The Russians insisted only theirs could circulate and threatened punishment to those accepting western money. The western allies recognized the Russian money as valid.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay said the Russians "cannot drive us out of Berlin by any action short of war."

The American military governor said the latest moves of the Soviets indicate they "are trying to put on the final pressure to drive us out of Berlin."

Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, primate of Hungary, was reported to have excommunicated members of the Hungarian government and parliament who nationalized Catholic schools last week. Hungary is one of the Communist nations conferring in Warsaw, along with Russia, Romania, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Poland, Albania and Bulgaria.

New Jerusalem Trouble

Irgun Zvai Leumi returned to the Jewish underground in a defiant break with Israel. The new state, now in a four-week armistice with seven opposing Arab nations, thus had a domestic rift on its hands.

The rupture came after Israeli forces sank a munitions ship trying to land 900 tons of war material in defiance of the United Nations truce. The Irgunists said 800 combat troops were landed before the ship sank, but 60 of these were reported captured.

Two Israeli ministers resigned. Disorders shook Tel Aviv again yesterday after skirmishes on the beach Tuesday in which 46 casualties were reported.

Bricker Rocks Convention

Junior Senator Puts Taft in Nomination in Stirring Address.

By The United Press

PHILADELPHIA, June 24—Sen. John W. Bricker of Ohio literally rocked the Republican national convention to its roots last night as he nominated Sen. Robert A. Taft for the presidency.

Sen. Bricker's 39-minute long speech, delivered with the 1944 vice presidential candidate's best oratorical fervor, set off a mammoth Taft demonstration on the convention floor.

Speaking entirely "off-the-cuff," the former Ohio governor described Sen. Taft as "the best president we could choose for these United States."

"The congress, the nation and the world are indebted to him for his superb leadership," Sen. Bricker told the cheering throng. "The magnificent record of the 80th congress is his record—upon it he stands."

The junior senator, mentioned as a possibility for the vice presi-

Dewey 114 Shy Nomination on Opening Ballot

By The Associated Press

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 24—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey fell 114 votes short of the 548 needed to win the presidential nomination today on the first roll call at the Republican convention, which started at 1:38 p. m. (EST).

The balloting brought these totals: Dewey 434, Taft 224, Stassen 157, Vandenberg 62, Dirksen 1, Reece 15, Driscoll 35, Green 56, Baldwin 19, Warren 59, Joe Martin 18, MacArthur 11.

Dewey's advisers had figured all along that he could hardly win the big prize on the first roll call, but contended it was certain by the fourth at the latest.

They hoped to win on the second which began immediately.

"Favorite Sons" Status Held

But reports from the floor indicated most of the states with "favorite sons" were inclined to stick with them for a second ballot.

Michigan's delegates said they would stand by Vandenberg.

Senator William Knowland called California "solid as Gibraltar" for Warren.

Immediately after the first ballot totals were announced, Harold E. Stassen told reporters:

"The first ballot is an indication that the delegates of this convention are insisting that they will make the nomination and that it will not be made in some back room."

"The silence with which Indiana's switch to Dewey was greeted confirms this."

Stassen was sitting at the back of the stage directing the floor strategy of his lieutenants by means of messages. Mrs. Stassen was by his side.

New Jersey's delegation, in a caucus between the first and second roll calls, decided to give Dewey 24 votes, Taft 2, Vandenberg 2, and Stassen 6. New Jersey's votes went to Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll on the first vote.

Situation Before Today's Session

The tide for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, already swirling the Republican presidential nomination close to his grasp, swelled higher today. Massachusetts' Senator Leverett Saltonstall got out as a "favorite son" in Dewey's favor. West Virginia gave him a boost.

These developments in the final hours before the balloting gave it the look of a bandwagon roll. Dewey's aides were working on an acceptance speech.

A key mid-western leader, who has fought Dewey's nomination, told reporters "it's all over," but asked not to be quoted by name.

Saltonstall announced he was withdrawing because he believed it "in the best interest of the Republican party in Massachusetts. He said he was for Dewey and had asked the Massachusetts delegates to "exercise their own best judgment."

There has been a terrific fight within the Bay state's 35-vote delegation. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., and others have been holding out for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Walter S. Hallanan, West Virginia national committeeman, came out for Dewey. He said the New Yorker at the head of the ticket would make it certain the Republicans will carry border states in the fall elections.

Even after Hallanan's move—which was not unexpected—the anti-Dewey forces were talking bravely, but Saltonstall's move was a heavy blow.

Before the Massachusetts development, Harold E. Stassen professed belief Dewey actually was losing ground. He said he understood three Kentucky delegates, two from Washington and one from Utah had left the Dewey camp.

McCormick Issues Statement

About the time Saltonstall was holding his news conference, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, got out a statement naming Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana as Dewey's choice for vice president. Halleck came out for Dewey yesterday.

McCormick said "Dewey will not be nominated because the delegates realize he will be hard to elect" and declared:

"Every one knows that the Indiana delegation was bought by the vice presidential nomination for Halleck after Gov. Green turned down the offer for the Illinois delegation."

Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan told reporters he would take a poll of his delegates to indicate where they wanted to go if the nomination appeared lost to Vandenberg.

He said: "By the time we get down to the end of the second roll call we ought to have a pretty good idea what's happening and I want to know what the delegates have in mind."

Dewey lieutenants claim there are at least 33 second choice votes for Dewey in the Michigan delegation.

At a noon news conference Stassen said he would have an important announcement at 1:30 p. m. He refused to give any hint of its nature.

The former Minnesota governor said he was more confident than he had been two hours earlier that Dewey had been stopped.

He said he had talked by phone with Senator Lodge, Taft and Saltonstall and Gov. James Duff of Pennsylvania about the methods by which the convention could decide to open balloting its choice for the top GOP nomination.

Confers with Lodge

Stassen had a pre-session conference with Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., of Massachusetts, who is plugging for Vandenberg for the nomination. There are reports that Stassen, if he can't get the big prize himself, would prefer to see it go to Vandenberg.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio conferred with members of the Utah and Kentucky delegations, and told reporters he also had been carrying on a lot of "telephone conferences."

Asked whether he was making any progress, Taft smiled:

"Yes, I think so," he said.

Dewey's camp suffered a disappointment when the Kansas delegation caucused and voted to cast 12 of its 19 votes for Dewey on the first ballot with the seven others scattered among Taft, Vandenberg, Stassen and Speaker Martin. Dewey men had claimed 14 to 16 Kansas votes.

Before Hallanan's pro-Dewey statement, unofficial checks showed 8 to 11 votes for Dewey in West Virginia's 16-vote delegation. It was not immediately clear whether Hallanan's action would add to that but certainly it had an 11th hour psychological impact.

Dewey's backers obviously were out to steam-roller the opposition if they could.

Plan Strong Opening Blow

As the time neared for the first call of the states at 1 p. m., the New Yorker's forces were ready to pour every available scrap of voting fuel into the boiler in the first two trips for the coveted prize.

With that steam up, the Dewey strategists counted on assuring victory on the third roll call if they don't pull the trick earlier.

Against this, Senator Taft, Stassen and a scattering of favorite sons fought a defensive, delaying action.

Dewey leaders claimed they would reach 500 votes—only 48 short of the nomination—by the second ballot. And with that start, they said, nothing can stop him.

These claims were quickly and vigorously disputed from the other camps.

"That's rubbish," said Ted Gamble, convention manager for Stassen, in a typical opposition comment delivered from the crowded, sweaty floor of the convention—now entering its climatic fourth day.

Taft said Dewey won't hit 500 on the first count. "The Dewey blitz has been stopped," Senator Taft insisted.

But a "we've-got-the-votes" quote came from J. Russell Sprague, New York national committeeman and a top Dewey leader, who added:

"They can't stop us."

The opposition's strategy was for each candidate to hold his lines as firmly as possible for two ballots.

This would require cooperation—and it seemed likely to be forthcoming—such as from the ex-pro son Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Warren's bloc of 68 California votes was one of the big holds at

NEW RADAR AIDS DEVISED FOR SHIPS

By International News Service

OTTAWA — The national research council and the department of transportation of Canada are co-operating to determine what use can be made of radar at the entrances to ocean ports. Considerable work has already been done and the equipment now in use is located at the Camperdown Signal Station overlooking the entrance to Halifax Harbor.

It is now possible to view incoming vessels during any conditions of fog, storm and darkness to a distance of 25 miles. The Sambro Light Vessel, anchored 11 miles off this point is clearly visible at all times. Its position marks the approach channel for vessels inward bound from the south and the west.

The outer automatic gas buoy is also always clearly visible and marks the channel for vessels approaching from the east.

The height of the radar installation at the Signal Station is such that inbound vessels can be followed and plotted from a distance of 25 miles with extreme accuracy. An accuracy of plus or minus 50 yards is obtainable to maximum range.

It is therefore possible for the shore base signal men to report inbound vessels from a greater distance than was previously possible even in clear weather and this condition exists during all types of inclement weather — that previously prevented satisfactory reporting of inbound vessels.

PICKENS' MONUMENT

By International News Service

WALAHALA, S. C. — South Carolina is making plans to erect a one thousand dollar monument to General Andrew Pickens, famous revolutionary and Indian war leader whose grave in Old Stone Church Cemetery near Clemson is now marked only by a sunken coping and time stained slab. The state legislature appropriated funds for the monument but the state historical society will decide where it will be placed.

At Republican Convention

In Plain Words

By James Marlow

PHILADELPHIA

THE Republican party's 1948 platform, adopted by the convention here, is a pretty carefully worded document.

This platform, like the platforms offered the voters in other years by Republicans and Democrats, is supposed to do a couple of things.

1. Please as many voters as possible which means promising to do things for them in various fields of American living.

2. Show where the Republican party stands in this year of 1948 on American and world problems.

James Marlow

This doesn't mean the Republicans if elected in November will carry out every promise made.

In the presidential elections of 1944 the Democratic and Republican platforms promised many things neither party carried out.

Both of them, since 1944 have had an equal crack at running congress and making laws. The Democrats from 1944 to 1946, the Republicans since then.

A lot of Republicans worked on this year's platform deciding not only what should be included or left out but on the phrasing of every sentence.

Because different groups and factions within the party had to be pleased or pacified the platform is the result of compromise.

It's a careful, cautious statement particularly so when it touches on social problems. For example on education the platform says:

"We favor equality of educational opportunity for all and the promotion of education and educational facilities."

There is nothing there suggesting the Republican party intends to do anything specific about federal aid—money for education. At the same time it doesn't say the Republicans won't do that.

A bill providing aid for schools died in the house this year after passing the senate. Opponents said they did not want to see the government get mixed up in education.

This year President Truman was swamped in protests from his own southern Democrats for his program on civil rights. Southern Negroes would have benefitted most if that program had been carried through by congress.

One of the things he asked congress to do was wipe out the poll tax which has to be paid in eight states, seven of them in the south, before a person can vote there.

In the 1944 platform the Republicans took a more specific stand on the poll tax than they did in this new 1948 platform. In 1944 the platform said:

"The payment of any poll tax should not be a condition of voting in federal elections and we favor immediate submission of a constitutional amendment for its abolition."

One of the main arguments of southerners against any attempt by congress to wipe out the poll tax by law is that it would be an interference by the federal government in a state's rights and those one of those rights is having a poll tax, if a state wishes.

That's why the 1944 platform spoke of getting rid of the tax by an amendment to the Constitution. That would require approval by 36 states.

But while southerners, Republicans and Democrats alike, are sore over Mr. Truman's program. And this year particularly, the Republicans have a chance to snatch away a lot of votes from the Democrats in the south.

This year's platform on the poll tax says simply "We favor abolition of the poll tax as a requisite to voting."

Nothing is said about how it should be abolished. It merely puts the party on record as favoring getting rid of the tax. That's probably the least that could be said without costing the Republicans some southern votes.

Somebody Get Slapped

THE U. S supreme court has refused to be a party to a scheme to get rid of a key section of the Taft-Hartley act by legal mumbo-jumbo

The fireworks in its decision is the fact one of the parties to the mumbo-jumbo was the U S department of justice The other one was the CIO

They both misinterpreted the section of the Taft-Hartley act which bans misuse of corporate and union funds in federal elections to seem to say that union newspapers cannot publish opinions about political candidates. They then claimed that the inalienable right of freedom of the press had been alienated by the Taft-Hartley act

The supreme court unanimously threw out this tortured interpretation It declared that freedom of the press, an inalienable right, had not been alienated It found nothing in the language of the Taft-Hartley act to suggest that congress had even tried to alienate it.

The case was argued with dubious reasoning —and the reasoning was dubious because it was in bad faith. The Taft-Hartley act's restriction on the use of union funds in federal elections never was intended to restrict freedom of the press. It merely was intended to keep unions from doing what corporations have been forbidden to do since 1925—spend money to influence directly the outcome of political contests for federal offices.

Justice Reed, speaking for the entire supreme court, said: "It would require explicit words in an act to convince us that congress intended to bar a trade journal, a house organ, or a newspaper, published by a corporation, from expressing views on candidates or political proposals in the regular course of its publication."

The Second Choice

THE CANDIDATES at Philadelphia should think twice before rejecting the vice presidential nomination. Seven of the 32, or more than one-fifth of the men who became president, first served as vice president The percentage is likely to rise as time goes by, for the complexities of the modern world make the presidency an increasingly exacting job

The ideal situation would be for the vice presidential nomination to go to the candidate who in the convention's opinion was the second best available rather than to one chosen for political expediency. The list of former vice presidents reveals a considerable number of nonentities nominated to swing pivotal states or appease factions at loggerheads. The choice for the second highest office in the land should entail more important considerations than that.

Peacetime Draft Problems

RESUMPTION of the draft will revive all the old selective service problems and introduce some new ones.

The possibility of serving three years in the National Guard will offer what appears to be an easy out for some who have no taste for military life. Those who miss the weekly drills and summer training in the field will be subject to call by the Army unless an adequate excuse can be given for absence. What constitutes "adequate excuse" doubtless will provide many an interesting session

The conscientious objector also is likely to prove troublesome More than 500 Protestant ministers have signed a statement calling on young men not to register or enlist "Peacetime conscription," their statement says. "Whether for training or service or both is such a huge and tragic step toward war that we believe it must be met with total rejection"

The problem of how to handle objectors and malingerers will not be as easily solved as in wartime Then there was an urgency which dictated summary and sometimes drastic action. Americans being what they are, such action will not prove popular in peacetime.

Return Engagement

CALIFORNIA'S "Ham 'n' Eggs" movement of the 1930's isn't dead: it was just sleeping. Its backers have obtained 297,710 signatures to place on the November ballot an omnibus bill of rights that has something for everybody.

Besides purporting to take care of the old folks in the grand manner, the bill would extend legality to bookmakers, lottery operators and quack healers It would set up burial funds, reapportion the state senate and even provide for the sale of colored oleo The only one to pay through the nose would be old John Taxpayer, who would have to shower down with a 2 per cent gross receipts tax If that didn't turn out enough, the levy could be raised to 5, 10 or 25 per cent, or whatever might be needed.

The bill will appeal to gambling interests, political peddlers and those on the lookout for something for nothing. But the plan isn't likely to have the appeal it did in the 1930's when it fell considerably short of a majority. The pavement pounders and relief roll riders of depression days are, for the most part, wage-earning citizens today. Prosperity dissipates up-to-the-bootstraps financial mirages that take shape on the horizon during depressions.

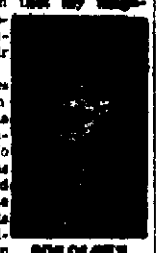
Scanning the Record

By George E. Sokolsky

Definition of Democracy in Truest Sense.

PHILADELPHIA

DEMOCRACY, in the truest sense, is direct participation of the people in the decisions of government. It is often, and correctly, suggested that the New England town meeting comes closest to a truly democratic institution Actually, the Republican convention this year is an enlarged town meeting, with much of the same independence of action and speech that my neighbors in Sandisfield, Mass., express at their sessions



SOKOLSKY

No one knows this convention No Mark Hanna has made himself felt No great leader has been produced either by the course of events or by outstanding speech In the various candidates' headquarters, the conversation indicates that this is equally true within the states. The voting, for several ballots, will indicate that delegates are voting independently, and in the effort to influence votes, the drummers and solicitors are approaching not outstanding personalities, but individual delegates That is one reason why, on this Tuesday morning, it is possible to say that no candidate can with any approach to assurance tell even his best friend that he knows he will be nominated.

Reason for Quiet

That also is the reason, I am sure, why the opening sessions of the convention have produced relatively mild cheering and applause. There has been no demonstration for anybody. Clare Luce nearly created one when she interjected Vandenberg's name in a speech where it did not belong Clare was so beautiful—perhaps lovely is a more accurate description—that one readily can forgive what in another would have been regarded as a major impropriety; namely, to attempt to jump the gun in favor of a candidate prior to actual nomination The applause was wild and Mrs Luce sought to stimulate it by smiles and by upward gesticulations, but it died and cleverly she mentioned other candidates to cover the flop-eroo.

If anyone could have stimulated a demonstration, Clare Luce could have done it after the unnecessarily elongated speech by Governor Green, and the neat of the lights and the general annoyance with the ushers and pages who are overtrained and forget that the delegates own the convention and that the press and photographers are there to accommodate the Republican party and not the other way around. Whoever trained that crew must have seen service in Kaiser Wilhelm's German army Not only is a sense of humor lacking but such a rigidity appears in mind and body as to create a general impression of uniformed nuisances. Certainly in their effort to prevent gate crashers they act as though they were the masters, not temporary pinholders Also, I want to see the day when a press photographer breaks his camera over the head of a stuffed shirt who exhibits a moment of authority by pushing men around These temporary great men are like temporary gentlemen they shrivel on exposure.

It Means Little

In that sort of atmosphere, relief in the form of a noisy, shouting, gesticulating demonstration is like a seventh-inning stretch at a ball game But it did not happen. The Luce effort for Vandenberg aborted

This convention will be pleased if either Taft or Dewey is nominated for the presidency It seems not to have any particular taste for a compromise choice. That seems to be the gist of conversation as one moves among delegates It will be a disappointed convention if the candidate is a resort to compromise There is sentiment for Taft there is sentiment for Dewey That is among delegates There is no pronounced sentiment for Stassen or Vandenberg or anybody else for a compromise.

Talk today is that neither Taft nor Dewey has enough Both sides claim victory both believe that there is a trend to their candidate Whatever truth there is in those statements may be disclosed before this article appears, but what is of permanent interest is that the delegates would prefer either Taft or Dewey and no one else. That is why sentiment is so evenly divided between these two and why the convention has become a horse race.

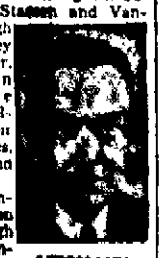
Two Forces Vie in GOP

By Walter Lippmann

PHILADELPHIA

CONDITIONS were ripe in this convention for ending finally and decisively the struggle between the prewar and the postwar Republicans. Nothing would have been so useful to the party and to the country than to have overcome here and now before the election, the fundamental division between the old and the new men.

If that is not done, it will not be because the forces represented by Martin, Bricker and Green, Taft and Hoover are so strong but because Dewey, Stassen and Vandenberg, though in principle they belong together, have not been able to rise above factionalism and their personal dislikes, ambitions and hesitations.



LIPPMANN

Among themselves these men represent enough strength to nominate a consistent and appropriate ticket, and to take over the leadership of the new administration and the control of the party. If they could unite here in Philadelphia, their candidates would be certain of election, and in office, vested with the immense power of a new administration, they would be certain to exercise undisputed leadership in Congress for a considerable period of time.

Their potential strength is reflected in the platform which is good enough in itself but is most remarkable because the isolationists, who cannot possibly agree with all of it, have not thought it expedient to argue publicly against it. Their acquiescence does not, however, mean agreement, and there is little doubt that they have acquiesced because they see a better chance of winning out in the deals for candidates and for jobs than on the abstract issues of principles

Their hopes of winning out in the end rest on the division among those who could, if united, easily defeat them. There is an ugly dispute between the Dewey and the Stassen headquarters. There has been some evidence of what could be a very nasty dispute between the supporters of Dewey and Vandenberg.

The effect of these disputes is to make it difficult for the postwar men to compromise their differences. Therefore they have exaggerated them, and are seeking compromises outside their natural supporters Because none thinks he can win by uniting with those who stand for the same things as he does. Dewey has been trying to reach out to the isolationists to override the Vandenberg - Stassen - Warren forces, and they have been reaching out to Taft and beyond Taft to "stop" Dewey.

These deals which could prevent a clear cut victory for the progressive postwar elements, could give the old guard a new lease on life, result from weakness and division, from lack of bold and imaginative leadership among those who, were they united could they rise to the occasion, have decisive victory within their grasp.

Elder Statesmen Lacking

How this situation will be resolved I do not know how to predict But it is evident that if it is not resolved well, a principal reason will be that there are no longer present elder statesmen of wisdom and influence. Mr Hoover cannot play that necessary role, because he is the prisoner of his own resentments. There is no one of the stature of Stimson who is above the battle and can exercise great moral authority

If there were, he would resolve the conflict among Dewey, Stassen and Vandenberg—a thing that could readily be done if personal ambitions and feelings were not so strong For the platform which represents their common views is in it essential provisions the joint work of Vandenberg, Dewey and Dulles

It would be a pity if men who agree so well on principle should remain divided and thus jeopardize the effective relation of what they believe in.

Daily Bible Thought

The Earl Carroll Era

By Harry A. McCree

THE death of Earl Carroll in an airplane crash ends the career of a showman whose fame was equal to that of Florenz Ziegfeld in the Turbulent Twenties. Unlike Ziegfeld, he didn't die when he was nationally famous. His activities in recent years have been confined to the West Coast. Many today have only a vague idea of his earlier theater ventures

In the 1920's when it was possible to stage a musical show without going into hock for $250,000, some impresarios brought forth annual editions of their musical revues or extravaganzas The best known of these was the Ziegfeld "Follies," but there also were Earl Carroll's "Vanities," George White's "Scandals" "The Music Box Revues," "The Little Shows," "The Passing Shows," "The Greenwich Village Follies," and "Artists and Models"

The Ziegfeld shows emphasized beauty and striking scenery They also introduced such stars as Will Rogers, Eddie Cantor W C Fields, Leon Erroll, and Fannie Brice, but comedy was secondary "The Music Box Revues" and "The Little Shows" relied on good tunes and witty topical sketches In the "Vanities" and "Scandals," the emphasis was on ribaldry and costumes as scanty as the law would allow. Among the Broadway proteges of Earl Carroll, the only one that comes to mind is Faith Bacon, a fan dancer who later bid for her share of the Sally Rand trade

Earl Carroll's name evokes a flood of memories in one who knew the Broadway stage in the 1920's. It wasn't so much the shows Carroll himself staged. Some of them were shoddy and in poor taste, even for that era of bathtub gin, but Carroll was a symbol of the era.

A sentimental theater-goer can look back on the Earl Carroll era and remember:

Gertrude Lawrence, fresh, young and dewy and thrilled at being a star, singing "A Cup of Coffee" in "Charlot's Revue."

Gilda Gray in the "Follies" in "It's Getting Dark on Old Broadway."

Grace Moore singing "Say It With Music" in "The Music Box Revue."

W. C. Fields' misadventures at the pool table in the "Follies"

The song called "Mountain Greenery" in "The Garrick Gaieties"

Zelma O'Neal's dancing in "Good News."

Fred and Adele Astaire in "Funny Face."

Some of the theaters where these and many other memorable entertainments took place have disappeared or are all-night grind movie houses but the memories remain with those who find in the theater something more than entertainment for the moment. Evocation of those performances which delighted them can recreate the whole era in their mind's eye.

It isn't that they would live in the past. It's just that pleasant memories of bygone times are one of the requisites of the full life

Platform Unity

By Raymond Moley

PHILADELPHIA

IN THE ancient gag a party platform was described as something to get in on and not to stand on. A different description is necessary for the Republican platform this year It is a means of gathering into a unit the various factions, elements and minority groups which constitute the party. It is like the anteroom where the distinguished guests assemble before a Chamber of Commerce luncheon They are introduced to one another, assembled in a line of procedure and otherwise prepared for the march to the speakers' table

This platform is well suited to assemble for Republican speakers in the ensuing four months the subjects it is safe to talk about. It gives a brief statement of each subject It has a little something for all factions and groups—agriculture, labor, small business, school people, veterans, women, western conservationists, Negroes and many others,. It provides plenty of criticisms and epithets to hurl at the Democrats And it bridges the gap between those who want to give a lot to Europe and those who want to give a little It accomplishes all these things successfully and, as platforms go, it is short and reasonably well phrased

Not All Campaign Issues

But a great proportion of the matters discussed in the platform will not be big campaign issues, for the Democrats and President Truman will have a hand in making the issues. And at this writing it can be confidently anticipated that Truman will stake his fortunes on two big issues. The first is that the high cost of living was made in a Republican congress, second, that the fate of the ERP cannot be entrusted to a Republican Administration.

On the first of these issues—inflation — the Republican platform stakes its fate on the elimination of controls. The Republican congress rejected Truman's plea in December. The statistical argument is that the course of inflation was accelerated by the administration because it failed to use effectively the controls it had and that it deliberately encouraged inflation But in this, as in many other issues, the platform leaves it to the candidate to cite chapter and verse

Whether Truman can put the Republicans in a real fix on inflation will depend upon many factors yet to be revealed. Surely, as politicians the members of the Truman administration will try to make inflation seem imminent. They may even devise means of stimulating inflation.

May Come Later

It may well be that the big news on this will not come until September At that time the General Motors wage-price formula comes up for revision If the figures which cannot be tampered with by either side show a big rise the country may be frightened into believing that Truman is right about controls. If only a small wage increase is indicated, the Truman scare will blow over. Good economists believe now that only a one- or two-cent adjustment in the GM formula will be indicated. Time will tell But considering the fact that this problem, above all others, goes into every home and store in the land, it is bound to be important.

As to the size of ERP the platform carefully avoids the issue. Both the Vandenberg and Martin-Taber people can stand on this platform. And the hope is that intra-party conflict can go over until after election

As a political document, the platform is suitable to its purposes.

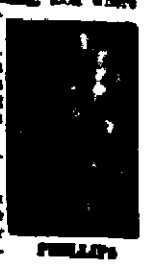
The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Television Taxicabs

There is talk of television in taxicabs, and this department is putting out a piece in a high tree now To be sure, the fears expressed when ordinary radios first were proposed in cabs never were realized, but we expect the worst upon the arrival of that day when the cabbie is trying to make the railroad station and follow every punch in a prize fight at the same time

W.ll he go where he is looking, look where he is going or try to synchronize both operations?



PHILLIPS

Many a crash will be due, we think, to the fact that a taxi tried to drive between a truck and a bus while looking between a left jab and an uppercut

Probable entries on the police blotters of the future:

1—Cab took to sidewalk and went through drugstore window, catapulting passenger into the chicken salad department Driver says he was proceeding east between a stolen base and a dispute with the umpire when everything went black Passenger says he repeatedly urged driver to go slow but got no answer beyond "Don't bother me Concha see the score's tied up"

2—Taxi telescoped bus Driver was following television of prize fight and was too absorbed in count of ten during a knockdown to apply his brakes Passenger says that before the crash the cabbie had gone through a red light under the impression he was going to a neutral corner

3—Two sedans in the river after bad crash Drivers, fished out, gave conflicting stories One swore he was going only 35 miles an hour between first and second base; the other admitted he was watching a horse race at the time and absent-mindedly tried to get into the photo finish

4—Wrecked coupe found against street lamp Passenger found in adjacent lot Video was still recording Indianapolis motor races.

5—Taxi off cliff at end of dead-end street Driver still unconscious. Passenger recovered at hospital sufficiently to give some clue Says that in watching ball game by television the cabbie driving in right lane, tried to foll a long hit into left field and crashed into traffic in left lane Then lost control and went off cliff shouting "Ya bum" at umpire who had called a long drive a foul.

6—Cab crashed into sedan full of housewives Taxi driver says he turned sharp left around Kyle McDonnell Woman driving sedan says she forgot to hold out her hand when slowing down for a better view of a televised can of baking powder.

Auto of the Future

By TRUMAN TWILL

Introduction of a new model by the automobile manufacturer whose famous Model-T made engine-driven transportation a national pastime—and a darned dangerous one—will hasten the conclusion of Chapter II in the life and times of the struggle buggy.

In Chapter I, the thing was only a buggy with the horse left in the stall and an infernal machine installed under the seat. The designers added a tiller to steer the thing and the hot sports took off in a cloud of castor oil fumes and road dust It was a novelty.

In Chapter II the designers concealed the thing was here to stay so it might as well be made bearable by the addition of ignition systems that worked, a self-starter to take the place of broken arms, tires that didn't go phut every 10 miles, seats that were halfway comfortable and tops that shed water. They did a great job They made the automobile a necessity.

But they also made it a killer because it kept getting bigger and fleeter while the drivers who handled it kept getting smaller and dopier. Doing something about drivers is the last great frontier in the auto industry The manufacturers are all headed in the same direction—preservation of people

The new accent is on safety. Having given the American public a chance to cover the distance between two points in a straight line, they are going to try to get it there in shape to sit up in bed and take nourishment—and with fewer funeral processions cluttering the right of way.

The automobile of the future will have a gadget on it to detect the odor of alcohol and switch off the engine automatically, measure it swallowing the keys until the odor disappears.

It will have a whingus on it to cut the ignition whenever the steering wheel is deprived of the benefit of the two hands that are needed there to hold the car on its course.

There will be a photo-electric cell built into the grillwork to cause the brakes to be applied when an object comes within a 30-foot range.

A doo-dad on the speedometer will cause "Nearer My God To Thee" to be sung by a Fred Waring chorus when the speed exceeds 30 in daylight—40 after dark.

Hypodermic needles, plasma, tetanus serum, traction splints and bandages will be built into the car of the future, also a nozzle that will squirt ice water into the face of any driver who falls asleep and starts to wander into sudden oblivion

These things are coming just as sure as the payments are going to fall due on the chattel mortgage being plastered on the bright and shining go-devils that are making them necessary. They're already overdue.

They will be Chapter III in the life and times of the struggle buggy in the United States. Either they'll be superseded or in another generation the only automobile left will be the Hara-Kiri Special, good for one trip only.

Brush and he became sole owner

In these developments and in many others, Mr Brush received the advice friendship and financial assistance of Richard Pow then president of the First National bank at Salem Esteeming him through life, Mr Brush never forgot the helpfulness of Mr Pow referring to it among his intimates on many occasions.

In 1901 an opportunity was presented for the purchase of the Review at neighboring East Liverpool the ving pottery center of the country Its acquisition gave Mr Brush ownership of two Columbiana county papers He divided his time between Salem and East Liverpool bought the East Liverpool Tribune a morning daily in 1921 merged the Review and Tribune later and placed the operation of the East Liverpool paper in the hands of his son Thomas Stewart Brush

Mr Brush and his brother Harlan W Brush bought the Red Alliance Leader about 1910 and sold it some months later to Frank and R C Holes owners of the Alliance Review and publication of the Leader was suspended

Purchase of Marion Star

In 1923 Mr Brush and Ray D Moore joined in the purchase of the Marion Star from President Warren G Harding

In 1925, Mr Brush, Mr Moore and William H Vodrey of East Liverpool bought the Steubenville Herald-Star from Charles D Smeral and associates

The three partners on May 17 1927, bought the Canton Repository from George B Frease and associates thereupon organizing Brush-Moore Newspapers Inc with Mr Brush as president Mr Moore as vice president and general manager and Mr Vodrey as secretary-treasurer and general counsel

Mr Brush's Salem News and East Liverpool Review then were brought under the ownership of the new corporation, linked with the Marion Star the Steubenville Herald-Star and the Canton Repository In 1930 Brush Moore Newspapers purchased the Canton News from former Governor James M Cox and merged it with the Repository In the same year the Portsmouth Times and a half interest in the Ironton Tribune were bought from Harry E Taylor The Salisbury (Md) Times, one of the only two daily newspapers on Maryland's celebrated eastern shore was acquired in 1937

In 1931 Brush-Moore Newspapers bought the Mansfield News and the Lorain Times-Herald from R C Holes and a year later sold these properties to S A Harvey owner of the Mansfield Journal and the Lorain Journal when in mid-depression it was evident that support was available in these cities for only one newspaper

Enter Radio Field

Mr Brush, Mr Moore and Mr Vodrey incorporated the All Broadcasting Co in 1936 and purchased from Rev Fr Edward P Graham the Canton Radio station WHBC In 1944 they acquired full control of the Scioto Broadcasting Co which operates radio station WPAY in Portsmouth

Early in his newspaper career Mr Brush participated in the activities of Ohio newspaper groups He served for 25 years as secretary of the Associated Ohio Dailies and met with other publishers annually at Columbus There and in those days the stalwarts of Ohio journalism gathered to talk shop such men as John T Mack of Sandusky, Commodore Perry of Chillicothe William S Carpenter and his son Ed Carpenter of Mansfield and on such occasions as he could attend Warren G Harding of Marion.

Close Friend of Harding

Fellow publishers lasting friends Mr Harding and Mr Brush were likewise loyal supporters of the Republican party They visited in their respective newspaper offices Mr Harding catching the aroma of printers ink when he sat with Mr Brush in the office of the Salem News and Mr Brush breathing it when he stopped in at the office of The Marion Star

Their acquaintances and support politically and editorially, ran through the days of Mr Harding's presence in the state senate from 1900 to 1904, during his incumbency as lieutenant governor from 1904 to 1906, through his unsuccessful campaign for governor in 1910, during his incumbency as a United States senator from 1915 until election as president in 1920 At the White House thereafter and until President Harding's death, Mr Brush was a frequent guest. It was at the White House and out of this long acquaintance that President Harding sold the Marion Star to Mr Brush and Mr Moore three days before he left on that fatal trip to Alaska

Actively identified with the Republican party in Columbiana county and in the state and later in the nation's councils Mr Brush served as a delegate to two Republican national conventions as chairman of the state finance committee and as chairman of finances of the national committee in Ohio He was a member of the national Republican program committee headed by Dr Glenn Frank and an advisor in state Republican councils

Friend of Five Presidents

Aside from his close relationship with President Harding he worked ardently for and became the personal friend of four other presidents First Theodore Roosevelt then William H Taft Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover He knew them in their campaigns and in the White House As a student and in his first newspaper work he was an enthusiast for Gov McKinley during his front porch campaign for President in Canton

Mr Brush served as a trustee of the McKinley Memorial association in Canton for many years and was a trustee of the Harding Memorial association at Marion almost since its inception

A member of the Society of the Mayflower Descendents Mr Brush was in direct line of descent in the eighth generation from Gov William Bradford of Massachusetts

Ardent golfer he played on the country's outstanding courses taking part on various occasions in the Ohio Senior and U S Senior tournaments.

He was vice president and director of the Ohio Mutual Insurance Co and vice president and director of the First National Bank of Salem His social and fraternal affiliations included membership in the Ohio Society of New York, the Society of the Mayflower Descendants of Ohio, the various Masonic bodies including the 32nd degree Masonry and Al Koran Shrine, the Salem Lodge of Elks, of which he was a charter member and past exalted ruler Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity The Union Club of Cleveland, the Salem Country club and Salem Golf club the Augusta National Golf club of Augusta, Ga the Indian Creek Golf club and the Surf club of Miami Beach Fla and The Natuona Press club

At Republican Convention

Roving Reports

By Hal Boyle

PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION sidelights

The people's voice filtered through 1,000 Republican larynxes at the end of the nearly seven hours of oratory for their seven peoples [illegible]

The grand Old Party's grandest party began with a stirring display of war whoops and barnyard yells for and against Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

It ended a 3:02 a.m. with hoarse tired cheers for General Douglas MacArthur in a hall [illegible] empty.

By then the hall looked like it had been the scene of a Communist convention [illegible]

HAL BOYLE

[illegible] delegates had discarded their [illegible] and unbuttoned their collars. Many [illegible] had taken off their shoes. [illegible] delegates fanned out the corridors and broke from cramps and [illegible]

Had the dawn come up like a [illegible] it would have looked like a whimper to the weary Republicans dreaming sweet victory dreams—for Tom Dewey. Or Taft. Or Warren. Or Stassen. Or Baldwin. Or Vandenberg. Or MacArthur.

Last night the voices roared those names. Today or tonight or tomorrow votes will pick the one survivor—the 1948 nominee.

One elderly marcher after trudging half an hour in the Dewey parade around the hall, sat down next to his wife and said:

"All right, mother. I've knocked myself out."

Another delegate grabbed a friend and tried to get him to march around again.

"Come on, Ed."

"I'm for him all right," said Ed, "but my feet aren't."

During the Taft demonstration one girl filing past the platform called to a comrade:

"Let's let the parade wait a minute. There's the newsreel cameras."

A wife said to her husband, also a Taft man: "Let's go home."

"Not for money," yelled her spouse. "This is more exercise than I get on the farm."

As the parade for Gov. Earl Warren of California got under way Patrolman Joe Pisano nabbed two characters busily lifting badges from coats left on chairs by two delegates.

"We wanted to see up real close" one of the badge grabbers explained virtuously.

A girl called to a friend in the Warren line:

"Helen, why are you running around making all that noise?"

"I'm for a candidate," said Helen, who didn't say who if she knew.

Another Warren supporter moaned:

"I've been tuning up for this all night—and now I'm too hoarse to yell."

This happened after the speech nominating Stassen:

First voice: "What did he say?"

Second voice: "I couldn't hear. Yell anyway."

Two spectators were amazed at a large rowboat containing a girl in sailor garb carried around the hall on the shoulders of Stassen supporters.

"How can you beat that?" grumbled one. "Those Stassen guys get a boat—and a shave."

"Pay no attention," said the other. "They're a bunch of radicals."

First voice: "Those damn-yankees are from the grass roots."

Bridgeport accent voice: "Yeah? Where's that?"

First girl: "Say, nobody listens to the speakers."

Second girl: "That's because everybody knows what they're gonna say, silly."

As the hot, weary, bedraggled delegates struggled from the hall, one effort under way got into impromptu organization.

A car drove by the entrance and a man stuck his head out and yelled:

"Eisenhower!"

Then the car sped off in the dark.

GYPSY ROSE LEE SEEN IN UPPER SANDUSKY

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, June 24—Gypsy Rose Lee, burlesque actress and author, is touring the country with a late model Cadillac and a large aluminum house trailer. The G-String girl was identified by her use of a credit card in buying gas at the East Side garage in Upper Sandusky. She was driving the car and was accompanied by a middle aged man and a small boy. The party did not reveal their destination. Driveway attendant Konstantine Salacoff said Miss Lee was attired in a very snappy sun suit and sandals when she stopped here yesterday.

CLARIDON TOMMIES MEET

Favorite flowers were given responses to roll call when the Claridon Tommies 4-H club met Monday night at the home of Gloria Ann Lashey on Harding Highway East. Miss Lashey gave a report on chickens, and Mary Lou Van Gordon gave a report on Bang's disease in cattle. A social hour followed the meeting and refreshments were served. The next meeting will be July 5 with Alice Price of the Yeager road.

WALDO SERVICE

A Childrens' day program of the Waldo Methodist church will be presented Sunday night. Judge Edward J. Russo of the Marion county probate and Juvenile courts will talk on Juvenile delinquency and will show moving pictures. A candlelight service "Give Us the Light," will be presented by children of the church. The program is under direction of Miss Hazel Clunk and her Sunday School class, and will be open to the public, it was announced.

NAVY PLANES CRASH, PILOTS PERISH. Smouldering ruins are all that remain of one of two Navy planes that crashed into a congested industrial district near Detroit's downtown area killing the pilots of both single seat ships and setting fire to three houses and a small tool shop. Witnesses say one of the wrecked planes flying in a routine formation over the city, suddenly swerved into the other. One crashed on a residential street and exploded. The second fell through the roof of the tool shop narrowly missing dozens of workers. Crowds jammed rush hour traffic for several miles.

NAVY STARTS PROBE INTO 2-PLANE CRASH

By The Associated Press

DETROIT June 24—The Navy launched an inquiry today into a spectacular crash of two fighter planes that set off raging fires in three homes and a factory in the heart of Detroit.

Witnessed by thousands, the crash took the lives of two Naval reserve pilots whose planes collided in mid-air yesterday afternoon while flying in a formation of seven. Both pilots were students at Michigan State college.

Police and firemen agreed that only "a miracle" saved scores of persons from death or serious injury when the planes careened out of the sky.

The crash occurred just after the formation winged over Briggs stadium where a ball game was in progress.

RAIL LABOR HEARING APPEARS NEAR DOOM

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON June 24 — Negotiations in the month old railroad labor dispute resumed only yesterday were expected to collapse today unless some progress is made on new contract terms.

Presidential labor adviser John R Steelman conferred separately with union and industry officials late yesterday trying to find a basis for new contract talks. At the end of the session Steelman reported "no progress."

He scheduled new conferences for today and indicated to the parties that a second no progress report would signal the end of White House efforts to mediate a private agreement.

This could mean the government is ready to enter into direct bargaining with the engineers firemen and switchmen if the rail industry fails to settle the dispute privately.

The Democratic national committee repeatedly has urged the White House to reach the rail dispute before the Democratic convention gets under way next month in Philadelphia.

OHIO HOSPITAL PLAN OUTLINED

Member of Federal Council Explains Operation of Government Aid.

By The Associated Press

OXFORD, O June 24—Joseph W. Fichter, state Grange master and member of the federal hospital council today presented an A-B-C primer of the new Ohio hospital plan.

The plan, approved last February, envisions at least some hospital facilities in every county. During the next five years, the federal government will meet one-third of the cost of building or expanding hospital and health centers. The other two-thirds must be raised by the state, the local governmental unit or by private organizations.

Fichter outlined Ohio's plan in a speech prepared for delivery before the school and community health conference at Miami university.

A survey by the state hospital facilities office showed, Fichter said, that Ohio needs 14,662 additional general hospital beds, 14,000 additional beds for patients with chronic diseases, 21,256 additional beds for the mental patients (not including beds for the epileptic and feeble minded) and 4,318 additional beds for persons with tuberculosis."

Three Areas Set Up

"Under the Ohio hospital plan, hospital service areas of three different types are set up with facilities which vary accordingly. Three base areas are centered in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Columbus," he continued. "Each of these areas contains a medical school with a teaching hospital of at least 200 beds. Eighteen intermediate areas have been designated, each having a population of more than 30,000 and containing at least one general hospital with a complement of 100 or more beds. Fifty-three rural areas have been established, each of which has a population of at least 30,000 and justify a hospital of at least 50 beds . . ."

The basic factors for determining whether a community is to receive assistance are, Fichter said, first, the need, second, the existing facilities, and, third the willingness of a community to finance the new hospital.

The 12 areas currently listed as being in greatest need of hospital facilities are, the Grange master continued, West Union, Pomeroy, Batavia, Georgetown, Washington C. H., New Lexington, St. Marys, Bowling Green, Barnesville, Ashtabula, Hillsboro and Van Wert.

"As of June 30, 1948, the amount of federal funds available to Ohio for the construction of hospitals is $2,692,125," Fichter added. "Of this amount, the sum of $2,391,618.66 has been allotted to 16 hospital projects a s a, which will cost $8,332,787 and will provide 621 hospital beds."

Listed Ten Projects

He listed the 16 projects are: Ashtabula General hospital, Ashtabula, 104 beds, new construction, total cost to be $1,200,000; Defiance hospital, Defiance, 65 beds, new construction, $650,000; Fayette County Memorial hospital, Washington C. H., general 32 beds, new construction, $539,000; Green County Memorial hospital, Xenia, general 75 beds, new construction, $1,216,000; Mount St. Marys hospital, Nelsonville, general, 74 beds, new construction, $1,170,000; Clinton Memorial hospital, Wilmington, general 65 beds, new construction, $970,200; Mercy hospital, Urbana, general 30 beds, new construction, $300,000; Mary Rutan hospital, Bellefontaine, general 30 beds addition to present hospital, $450,000.00; Brown Memorial hospital, Conneaut, 30 beds addition to General hospital, $300,000; Richland county tuberculosis sanitarium, Mansfield, a tuberculosis hospital, 84 beds, new construction, $281,000.

Fichter said "experience so far has demonstrated" that (1) the duration of the program must be extended considerably beyond the present five-year period. (2) national and state governmental appropriations should be made to absorb deficits in operation of hospital in financially poor communities, (3) legislation should be enacted to provide financial assistance in the development of rural area health units, and (4) continued research on the planning and operation of health programs is necessary.

THE GOOD OLD SUMMERTIME . . . Hot, sultry weather is no excuse for sloppiness. If you look fresh and neat you will actually feel cooler.

PRISONER IS FINED ON CHANGE OF PLEA

Five Cases Now Remain for Final Disposition.

The list of six criminal cases still to be heard in common pleas court was reduced to five today as Judge Paul D Smith and County Prosecutor James E Reed moved to clear the docket of cases coming out of the May grand jury.

In addition to disposing of the case of Joseph F Barrus, who was indicted for assault Judge Smith set down trial dates for several cases postponed at the request of the defendants

Barrus was fined $100 and costs and given probation for two years this morning when he changed his plea to guilty through his attorney Bernard Moloney He was to have been up for trial yesterday

Reset for trial were the cases of Clifford R. Bayles, charged with receiving stolen property and Clare Hickman, charged with malicious destruction of property. Bayles, who was to be tried June 17, now is listed for July 6. His brother, Richard L. Bayles, is scheduled to be tried on the same charge June 28. QUINTS HAVE STATISTICS

NEW York. The Dionne quintuplets at 14 have defied the normal statistics of mortality rules, according to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. The quintuplets jointly have combined ratio that face an average woman in 63 years and now have 37 out of 100 chances that they will live to a disreputable age. Their chances of living until 65 are three to five and to 65 more than one in five, the statisticians say.

BRAZIL RESUMING COINAGE OF GOLD

By The Associated Press

RIO DE JANEIRO June 24 — Brazil soon will start coining gold money for the first time since 1922.

The idea came directly from President Dutra as a suggestion to stop the concentration of paper money in private hands.

Great amounts of paper money sold out of circulation by private interests are said to be hampering commercial financial and industrial activities in Brazil.

In Brazil's earlier days most of her coins were made of gold. After the empire was overthrown in 1889 the Republic continued gold coinage but stated giving preference to other metals. Gradually the issues of gold decreased and finally stopped altogether in 1922. Since then gold money has been out of circulation.

The gold for the new money is expected to come from Minas Gerais the deepest inland mine ever mined. The first issue is planned to be 250,000 cruzeiros (about $12,500).

Officers Installed By Fellowship Class

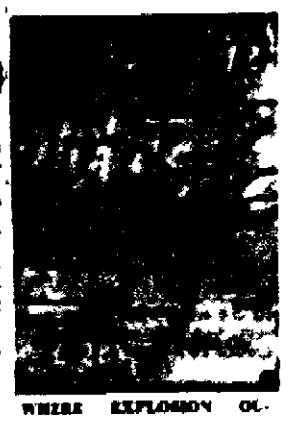
The slate of officers of the new year was read when the Fellowship class of Central Christian church met for a pot luck supper and business meeting Monday night at the church. Mrs. Florence Fulton a past president was in charge of the installation.

Mrs. Frieda Duckworth was installed president Mrs. Georgia Shuler vice president and Mrs. Burnette Bruce secretary and treasurer. Named to serve on the program committee for July August and September were Mrs. Irer Burnap Mrs. Adeline Napper and Mrs. Betty Walraven and on the sick committee, Mrs. Bruce.

Prayer was given by Cutler McGrew and the class voted to pay the scholarship for one youth to the Youth Conference to be held July 25 August 1 at Bluffton O. Plans were made for a picnic supper for members and their families to be held July 28 at Harrison-Smith park in Upper Sandusky.

WINDFALL SOCIETY MEETS

When the Women's Missionary society of St. John's Lutheran church of Windfall met Sunday afternoon at the church, program leaders were Mrs. Karl Diemer and Mrs. Robert Heimlich. Opening Schipture and prayer were by Mrs. Ed Heimlich. Mrs. Robert Heimlich gave the program introduction and Rev. Diemer presented the Bible study. A topic, "The Gospel of Israel" was by Miss Ella Rengert, Miss Sarah Rengert and Mrs. Henry Heimlich. Mrs. Diemer read a letter from India and she gave a discussion of family worship. A Lutheran mission in Palestine was discussed by Mrs. Ralph Rengert. Chairmen of various committees gave reports. It was announced that the July meeting will be dispensed with and on Aug. 8 at 8 p. m. at the church there will be a combined meeting for July and August with a program for July led by Mrs. Homer Ebert and Mrs. Albert Miller, and for August Miss Dorothy Osging and Mrs. Lowell Boger.



WHERE EXPLOSION OCCURRED Symbol indicates where series of dealer explosions stopped night section of huge Hercules Powder Co. plant in Kenvil, N. J. (June 21). Two men were killed and at least two other persons injured.

Women's voices are somewhat harder to understand over the telephone than men's.

CLASS ON PICNIC

Thirty-five members and guests of the King's Sunday school class of Epworth Methodist church held a picnic supper Tuesday night at Maplecrest Home for Boys run by Mrs. Stewart Glassmire matron of the home. Big town girls who reside at the home were guests. During a short business meeting election of officers for the new year was held. Mrs. E. E. Bagring was elected president, Mrs. Robert McCormuck, first vice president, Mrs. Effie Ballard, second vice president, Mrs. Frank Deuce secretary, Mrs. Fred Boyer assistant secretary, Mrs. Earl Sechel treasurer and Mrs. Mary Navin, assistant treasurer. For the program, Mrs. Glassmire gave a talk on the Maplecrest Home.

Notice of Appeal Filed in Suit Here

William P Maloney and Martin and Bond attorneys for Benton Peterson filed notice of appeal Tuesday seeking reversal in the district court of the judgement rendered in favor of Philip Guthery in an action to hold Peterson to terms of a lease on business property which the latter sought to break.

Common Pleas Judge Fred McAllister of Delaware county granted Guthery a permanent injunction protecting Guthery's lease until expiration.

Lease involved the Laundromat at 142 South Prospect street. The property is owned by Peterson and leased for operation of the laundry business by Guthery. Lease is effective until August 1, 1948.

TUSKS OF ANCIENT ANIMALS UNEARTHED

By International News Service

BRIGGSDALE, Colo., — Fossil experts form Colorado State College of Education at Greeley hurried excitedly to a Briggsdale ranch recently to establish the authenticity of two giant tusks of a hairy mammoth, unearthed by a rancher and his son while they were digging test holes for a stock pond.

Elmer P Ball and his son, Roland, were working on their Lazy S over S ranch, when the discovery was made

About three feet of the soil in the lake bed had been removed and Mr. Ball was drilling with a hand augur to test the depth of the sand. He had drilled about 30 inches when the augur struck a hard surface. Father and son cleared the surface soil around the augur hole to a depth of nearly four feet and a circumference of 12 feet.

Then, with hand picks and shovels, they uncovered an enormous tusk It measured 99 inches long and 24 inches in circumference at the base. It was brittle and crumbled easily

Mr Ball and Roland unearthed a second tusk They covered their find and called the fossil experts

Dr William B Bass, professor in education and widely known geology authority, studied the formation and planned how they could be removed intact from their resting place.

The mammoth — for the tusks were those of a prehistoric beast — was similar to the present day elephant, only much larger, and roamed the northern section of the United States 25 thousand years ago.

The professor and his assistants returned to the ranch the following day to remove the fossils Although they worked carefully and slowly the tusk nearer the surface disintegrated. The other tusk, however, held firmly together

WARTIME SILVER RETURNS TO MINT

By International News Service

DENVER — One of the most valuable mustering out jobs in the history of the nation at war was completed recently at the U. S. mint in Denver

Two hundred million dollars worth of silver was brought home from its war duties and safely stored in the huge vaults of the basement of the mint

When the last heavily-loaded truck rumbled down the ramp into the mint, Ross L. Hudson, reconstruction finance corporation manager, heaved a big sigh of relief and took off for a fishing trip.

The silver was used in war plants in California, Nevada and Washington At the early stage of the conflict, when large plants began draining vital copper for electrical units in smelting and refining plants, the silver was pressed into service.

There were thousands of tons of idle silver — which is a better conductor of electricity than copper. The silver was loaned by the Treasury department for use as large bus bars in the electrical smelters.

CHURCH BODY FAVORS RELIGION IN SCHOOLS

By The Associated Press

OBERLIN, O., June 24—Trial teaching of "religious content" in social and other studies in public schools was favored today by delegates to the biennial meeting of the general council of Congregational Christian churches.

A resolution condemning the recommendation was aimed at encouraging the lean to religious study caused by the U. S. supreme court's ruling against such education in public schools.

Also recommended was "inclusion of special courses which describe the various religions which form the background of our culture and maintenance of and experimentation with released time and dismissed time programs within the interpretations of the courts."

The directive to the general membership of the church proposed that local churches strengthen their religious programs "in relation to public and private education."

The 2,000 delegates end their eight-day session today.

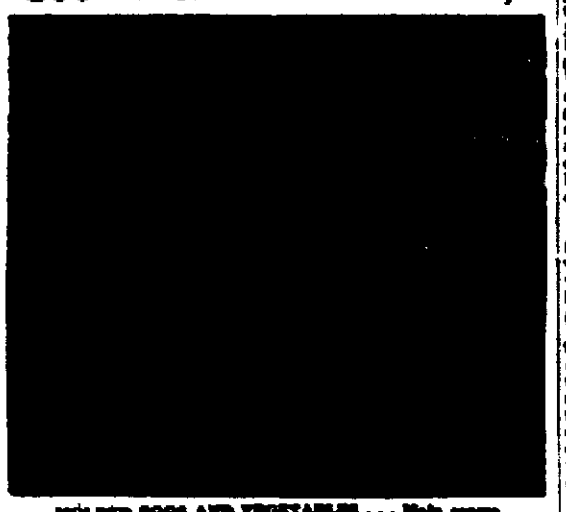
Cool Dishes for Hot Days



MOLDED EGGS AND VEGETABLES . . . Main course.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Of all the cold jellied main dishes I've tasted recently I like Molded Eggs and Vegetables best. It's such a well-flavored and attractive dish, and with such good texture, that it makes an excellent main course for a warm weather luncheon or supper. The combination of hard-cooked eggs and sweet pickles chicks with most people so be sure to garnish the loaf with small gherkins if you have them.

Molded Eggs and Vegetables

One envelope unflavored gelatin, ½ cup cold water, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, dash of cayenne pepper, ⅔ cup mayonnaise or mayonnaise-type salad dressing, 1½ teaspoons finely grated onion, ½ cup finely diced celery, ½ cup finely diced green pepper, ¼ cup chopped pimento, 3 hard-cooked eggs, gherkins and salad greens.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Place over boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add salt, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce and pepper. Cool. Add mayonnaise or mayonnaise-type salad dressing, onion, celery, green pepper and pimento. Chop 4 of the hard-cooked eggs coarsely and mix in. Turn into large or individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with remaining sliced hard-cooked egg, gherkins and salad greens. Six servings.

When it comes to methods of making gelatin dishes I was interested to find a new cook book, "The 60 Minute Chef" by Lillian Bueno McCue and Carol Truax (published by Macmillan, New York), advocating the same quick method I often like to use. Don't adopt it, however, if you are the "forgetful type." If you freeze the mixture rather than just let it set, you'll have to start all over again after melting it and so you'll be behind instead of ahead!

The authors of "The 60 Minute Chef" says that you can make a gelatin aspic or mousse in 60 minutes, by their method, and I agree. Here is their suggestion after you've made up the mixture: "Pour it into the freezing tray, or set the individual molds in the freezing compartment. Now the treatment you give it depends on the behavior of your individual icebox. At a normal state of cold-production, it will set in about ¼ hour. Take it out as soon as it begins to set, before freezing sets in, and finish the job in a cold part of the icebox. If you set up the cold-control, it will set in 5 to 10 minutes, but you have to watch it, as at so great a degree of cold some mixtures are likely to separate and begin to freeze at the edges before they set. The 5-minute treatment is just the thing, however, for the gelatine basis of a mousse. Advance the cold control, and watch your mixture till it begins to thicken. Then take it out, whip it stiff, fold in whipped cream or mayonnaise, and put it in the coldest place to set."

Here are two excellent recipes from the cook book that illustrate the authors' method:

Tomato Aspic

Have ready 1½ cups of tomato juice. Soften 1 tablespoon of gelatin in ¼ cup of the cold tomato juice. Heat another ¼ cup with 1 bouillon cube, ½ teaspoon of grated onion, ½ teaspoon of salt, ½ teaspoon of sugar, and ½ teaspoon of pepper. Dissolve the gelatin in the hot tomato juice, stir in the remaining ¾ cup cold, and chill till set in the freezing compartment, about 20 minutes. Keep in the icebox and serve ice-cold.

Coffee Bavarian Cream

Soften 1 tablespoon of gelatin in ¼ cup of cold water. Make very strong coffee (no other kind will do), by dripping 1 cup of hot water over 4 tablespoons of ground coffee. Take ½ cup of hot coffee. Dissolve in it the gelatin, together with 1/3 cup of sugar and ¼ teaspoon of salt. Chill in the freezing tray, 5 minutes or more, until the mixture begins to thicken at the edges. Whip 1 cup of heavy cream. Whip the thickened gelatine mixture, adding 1 teaspoon of vanilla and 1 tablespoon of rum. Fold in the whipped cream. Pile into sherbets and chill till serving-time. Serve with or without sweetened whipped cream flavored with vanilla.

There are many other dishes in "The 60 Minute Chef" that you may enjoy because as the authors say they have "excluded rum of the mill recipes in favor of inspired dishes from many famous kitchens, each the tastiest of its kind prepared in the quickest way."

When Nominating Demonstrations Started

GAVEL IS POUNDED VAINLY by Permanent Chairman Joseph W. Martin Jr., speaker of the house, during mighty, tumultuous demonstration at Republican national convention in Philadelphia, touched off by nomination of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York for presidency. Dewey backers march again and again past speaker's platform with signs bearing huge pictures of Dewey. (International Soundphoto)

SHOWING THEY'RE FOR TAFT. Nomination speech for Senator Robert A. Taft by his colleague, Senator John W. Bricker of Ohio, touches off a wild and noisy demonstration at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia. Delegates wildly wave their banners, pictures of Taft and his four leaf clover symbol as they parade up and down the aisles. (International Soundphoto)

There Are Many Rooms Filled with Smoke At Political Conventions

By CLARE BOOTHE LUCE

PHILADELPHIA, June 24—Wherever more than two or three are gathered together here to discuss the presidency, there is a smoke-filled room.

At two-thirty Wednesday afternoon, two men who are seeking the presidency and their aides, and the captains of a third who are seeking it for him came together with other delegation heads opposed to Dewey to discuss how to stop the New York governor. These men are Taft, Stassen, Governor Duff of Pennsylvania, Governor Sigler of Michigan and Harold Mitchell, state central committeeman of Connecticut.

If they can agree on a strategy and a candidate, there would be a coalition which could certainly achieve its objective these men represent more than five hundred votes. On the floor they could count for several ballots on the stand-pat votes of the favorite sons: Warren, Baldwin, Green, Reece and Saltonstall. Dewey would then be a good 150 shy of the number needed for the nomination. Clare B. Luce

What is more important, such a coalition, moving swiftly, after the first two ballots would be a real blitz on Dewey. Its formation alone has already done much to change the psychological atmosphere of "inevitability" which has been so effective, if synthetic, a part of the New Yorker's political technique.

Can Dewey be stopped by this surprise coalition move?

The governor of New York with 97 votes in his pocket is always in the best strategic position at a convention. To his inital numerical advantage Dewey has added plus factors. He has a competent, well disciplined organization, headed by Brownell-Jaeckel-Sprague. It has been tested in two previous conventions and one national campaign. It works as smoothly as—machinery, and some delegates feel as inhumanly. There is nothing fanatical or crusading about the Dewey boys. They are as tough, hard, and smart as the operators who worked for him in his gang-busting days. They are not only good at collecting damaging information about the opposition, but they can churn out and release it even faster. Triumphant claims pour forth incessantly from Dewey headquarters. At every convention a certain percentage of delegates can always be depended to respond favorably to this forceful propaganda. Dewey knows, no doubt, to a fraction this Pavolian percentage.

It is of course necessary for a candidate to have something besides a slick organization and a hard determination to rule the nation. He's got to have a policy.

He Carves Path

Mr. Dewey's aides, and Mr. Dewey, have cautiously chiseled out the perfect middle-of-the-road-position throughout the years. This position is dead-center between Taft and the late Wendell Willkie. In every controversial issue, Dewey has gravitated to that position which currently attracted the largest or opinion. Never ahead, he is selcentral section of Republican dom much behind any national or international issue by the time it reaches the headlines.

It was the great boast of this convention that it would not nominate a compromise candidate. But the fact is that Dewey is the perfect Republican compromise. That is why his adherents find it possible to present him as sound and progressive, liberal and conservative, nationalistic and internationalistic. It is also why he is anathematic to the party idealist, who in the word of the Apoxalypse is inclined "to vomit the lukewarm out of his mouth because they are neither cold nor hot."

Dewey represents neither the defeat of the progressive nor the reactionary element in the Republican party. Both will be plumped, so to speak, in the Dewey deep-freeze at least until after the election.

The second thing that the public feared about this convention was that the nomination might be the result of smoke-filled rooms. If Dewey wins, many will assume that didn't happen. But the unhappy fact as already noted is that at any political convention the deals made in the smoke filled rooms are always the decisive factors. That is why the lobbies of the hotels buzz with the tales of the tremendous Dewey deals. It is rumored that Dewey's managers — because he needs a soldier badly on his team—hooked Senator Ed Martin by offering him secretary of defense in exchange for splitting Pennsylvania's ranks; that they offered the vice presidency to Kansas' Governor Carlson, Illinois' Governor Green, Indiana's Representative Halleck, not to mention California's Governor Warren. This is not said to disparage the able New York governor. The only effect this has had on the delegates is to make them speculate whether Tom Dewey will have to greatly increase ambassadorial representation aboard or work cabinets in shifts.

Two Patterns Emerge

The truth is that two patterns have now emerged: the get-elected-at-any-price or practical politics boys and the stick-by-your-principles-no-matter-what or idealistic boys. In the latter camp are the followers of Taft, Stassen, Vandenberg and Warren, who feel that beyond all else the principles upon which an election is to be fought and won count more than winning the nomination.

Since they have honest differences on some issues, it is difficult for them to make a common front and to agree on a common candidate against Dewey. But it is not impossible. The Warren-Stassen,-Vandenberg-Taft-Duff forces, with their great potential strength in every delegation may still be able to pull together, and agree on a candidate who represents their basic idealism. The man they could agree on is still Senator Vandenberg.

The hour is late. But these forces are not hopeless, for all politicians know that there are no hopeless situations in politics, but simply men who have grown hopeless about them.

dential nomination at this convention, blasted the present administration and charged that infiltration of subversive elements into government had occurred under its auspices.

Sen. Bricker climaxed his speech with these words:

"I give you a man of great faith, a faith in divine guidance, a faith in his government, a faith in himself, a faith in his fellow men. He has the vision of the ultimate destiny of our republic at home and in world affairs. Under his leadership this republic can lead the world into the dawn of that great day of peace on earth and good will among men, that day for which the Master died and for which we should live and work pray."

Sen. Bricker, just before 11:30 p. m. EST, touched off the Taft demonstration when he concluded with these words:

"I nominate for your votes one whom all America proclaims a great man, my senior colleague, U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft."

CONVENTION

the coalition, and Dewey's forces were making strenuous but thus far futile efforts to woo the westerner away.

The coalition—agreed upon in talks between Taft, Stassen, Gov. James Duff of Pennsylvania, Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan and National committeeman Harold Mitchell of Connecticut—was to force a convention recess before the third ballot.

This would give time for the opposition to look over its strength and possibly agree on a single candidate to back.

The plan had the approval of Duff and of Sigler, who placed the name of Senator Arthur Vandenberg before the weary delegates in the early hours of this morning.

Vandenberg, self-styled "problem child" of his supporters because he says he doesn't want the nomination, remained one of the most likely compromise candidates of the Dewey dissenters.

Stassen No. 2 Choice

There was authoritative word from Stassen's camp, meanwhile, that the only candidate the former Minnesota governor would consider going for, other than himself, is Vandenberg.

Taft's hope of winning the nomination seemed to lie in the wild maneuvering that would follow any collapse of the Dewey boom.

If Dewey toppled, Taft's friends would try to stampede the delegations.

Most of those who saw last night's and this morning's convention hall show seemed to think that there was more enthusiasm among the whooping, hollering delegates who marched for Taft and Stassen than among those who stamped and howled for Dewey.

Stassen held on grimly for a break.

But the big, unanswered question in his case was whether he could ever get the support of Taft's followers even if a surge began in the direction of the former Minnesota governor.

Some of those who know the Ohioan best said they think Taft is not interested in stopping Dewey for the ultimate benefit of any other candidate than Taft.

In other words, these persons said that while Taft might possibly prefer Vandenberg to Dewey, he would just as soon see the New York governor get the prize as Stassen or anyone else.

Yesterday was circus day at the convention and it lasted until well along into today's morning hours.

All the major candidates stayed away from the 5 hour, 42-minute session.

Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania, who cast off his favorite son robes to back Dewey, told the delegates that in offering the New Yorker's name "I am about to nominate the next President of the United States."

Then it was the turn of Senator John W. Bricker to put Taft's name before the convention as "the best president we could name for these United States."

The Taft followers poured on' into the aisles and began their mad singing, shouting merry-go-round. It last 38 minutes against Dewey's 32.

Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, greeted the crowd "warmly," mopped his brow, and offered Governor Warren as "a modern American, intelligently aware of a world in which time and space have been almost entirely eliminated."

Rep. Walter H. Judd of Minnesota then strode into the spotlight to present Stassen as "a man who can act before trouble starts instead of struggling painfully to straighten out a mess after it has happened."

Mrs. Frances Burke Redick of Newington, Conn., nominated Baldwin, her state's favorite son. There was a six-minute brunk of music and a shower of confetti.

Governor Sigler then stepped up to present Senator Vandenberg "without fanfare, without paradox, without ballyhoo, but with the quiet dignity that becomes him."

The Michigan delegation burst into song when Sigler was through, punctuating it with the V-sign which has become their campaign signal.

Last Till After 3

In the final minutes of the weary hours before the convention's recess at 3:02 a. m., eastern standard time, Harlen Kelley, blind Milwaukee lawyer, pleaded with the delegates to give Gen. Douglas MacArthur a chance to say again, "I shall return."

BINGO ACT IN OHIO LEGAL, COURT HOLDS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 24 — Ohio's bingo act is legal, the state supreme court held yesterday in a six to one decision.

The act, passed in 1943, allows bingo parties which are not operated for personal gain. Bingo played for the operator's "own profit" constitutes a lottery.

The decision means that religious, charitable and patriotic organizations may continue bingo parties without fear of prosecution.

Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt dissented.

A constitutional provision barring lotteries is not self-executing, the supreme court ruled. Laws must be passed to make it operative. Thus, the court decided, the legislature had authority to exclude bingo from the prohibited list when not operated for personal gain.

The decision was made in a case involving Murray S. Parker of Summit county. He was arrested on a 127-count indictment charging him with operating bingo games.

In another decision, the supreme court upheld state motor vehicle registrar Edward T. Fogo in refusing free license plates to the Church of the Nazarene for buses used to carry children to Sunday and Bible schools.

ARMY RESERVE FULL BEFORE DRAFT BILL

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 24—The reserve units whose membership exempts young men from the draft are full to overflowing today, before the president has signed the draft bill.

The National Guard has been the chief beneficiary of the exemption act so far and has surpassed its budgeted quota for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949.

The quota is 341,000 men for both ground and air arms, although provision is made for a total of 345,000 because of expected discharges and normal turnover.

The Naval reserve had no specific figures, but Navy recruiting officers reported that the 300,000 budgeted quota for the current fiscal year is full except for a few unavailable specialists. The same is true of the Marine corps reserve.

The Army's enlisted reserve corps suffered from a lack of [illegible] last night. The draft act specifically states that to escape conscription a man between the ages of 18 and 25 inclusive must enlist in a reserve unit that is undergoing definite scheduled training. The ERC units that are doing this are regularly.

Diamonds are eighty-[illegible] as hard as the nearest competitive gem.

Ten-Run Fourth Inning Gives Zanesville 17 to 11 Win Over Cubs

Mike Blazo Brings Leading Muncie Reds Here Tonight

By BILL DEEM

Mike Blazo will bring his league-leading Muncie Reds to town tonight and Marion fans hope the Cubs have given their last lesson in how to blow a five-run lead, but fast.

That's just what happened in Lincoln park last night—the Bruins went into the fourth inning five runs ahead and came out of it five runs behind Zanesville's Dodgers, who retained the lead the rest of the way in evening up the series with a 17 to 11 triumph.

Their ten-run fourth inning the largest single inning at Lincoln park this year, was largely a gift of Marion pitcher Ray Peet who walked five Dodgers, four of which walks drove in runs. He also gave up three hits in that inning, and reliever Gene Pisarski who came in with seven runs across and a man on third, walked another, gave up two hits, and the Marions threw in an error to account for three more runs.

Was Fifth Loss

Peet, who was charged with his fifth loss, just couldn't get them out, even when he was ahead two strikes to one or no balls.

With four runs in, two out and the bases still loaded, he fed a fat pitch to Zanesville catcher Bill Gill who hit it into deep centerfield for a three-run triple, and it was then that Cub Manager Zeke Bekeza figured maybe Peet didn't have it and waved in Gene Pisarski.

Lefty Pisarski walked the first man he faced, the second arrived safely on first on Don Schmitt's error, which also allowed Gill to score. Zanesville pitcher Fred Wagner, who received credit for Lampenfeld in the second, drove the win after relieving starter Al in the inning's ninth and tenth runs with a double to centerfield.

SMITTY'S WIN 6TH LEAGUE GAME, 4-2

Smitty's Grill softball team defeated Ashland, 4-2, on the foreign diamond last night for their sixth win in eight N.C.O league starts.

Ashland fireballer Gene Rooney gave up but three hits, all of them in the fifth inning giving Smitty's two runs. Millisor limited the Indians to four.

Ashland manager Herb Carr pinch hitting in the seventh lifted a Millisor pitch over the Brookside park walls for one of the longest homers ever seen there.

The next league game for Smitty's will be played at Crystal Lake park next Monday night against Willard.

Fremont will meet Smitty's Maids at the Crystal diamond tonight at 8:30.

REDS BASEBALL SCHOOL

By The United Press

LANCASTER, June 24—A baseball school for diamond hopefuls between the ages of 17 and 22 will be conducted by the Cincinnati Reds here Friday and Saturday it was announced today. Buzz Boyle and Angus King, Redleg scouts, will be in charge.

Tag Team Match For Tonite

There will be plenty of action tonight at the Marion armory when Renee LaBell and Eddie Williams team up against the team of Jack Terry and Irish McGee. Last week McGee won a one fall decision over LaBell and the French-Canadian is out for revenge. Williams won the battle royal and should make a very good partner for LaBell. The combination of McGee and Terry looks like a lot of trouble and will make their opponents stay on their toes to win. Before the tag match there will be two thirty minute matches in which Renee LaBell will tackle Jack Terry and Eddie Williams will take on Irish McGee. A prelim will start the fire-works at 8:30. No change in prices. Call 2743 after six for reservations.

FORMER MARION BOY SIGNS CUB CONTRACT

Jim Kunkler, son of Mr and Mrs Donald Kunkler former Marion residents a pitching star for Oceana High school at Virginia Beach, Va last season has been signed by the Portsmouth Virginia farm club which is a part of the Chicago Cubs system. Jim signed the contract June 15 after his graduation from the high school June 11. He received the Virginia Beach Rotary medal an award the Rotary club presents to one of the seniors of that school each year.

SONHOANS SWAMP QUAKER OATS, 26-10

Any ball fan whose particular interest is in watching ball players traverse the base paths would have been in his glory at McKinley park last night where the Sohioans of Industrial League No 2 romped over Quaker Oats, 26-10.

Doolittle and Marchant hit three for four in pacing the Sohioans 15-hit attack. Errors were costly for the Oats as they permitted 10 runs on four hits in the fourth. Waiters for Sohio gave up eight safeties. Johnson and Angus hurled for Quaker.

Behind the five-hit pitching of Thorpe Osgood edged O A T., 3-2 on the Fairfield diamond, and Ohio Public Service swamped Oswalt 21-2, at Garfield in the remaining two games in the league. A homer by Jim Riley in the fifth highlighted a seven run spree by O P S. Mull hit safely in four or five trips to lead the winners.

Kimball and McKeever combined to handle mound duties for O A T., permitting Osgood nine hits. O P S connected for 13 hits to six for Oswalt.

POLLY RILEY MEETS THE BABE TODAY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO June 24 — Polly Riley, a current Texan, and Babe Didrikson Zaharias, who belongs to the Lone Star state by remote control, tangled today in the key quarter-final battle of the 18th Women's Western open golf tourney

Their upper bracket scrap highlighted four 18-hole matches over the rambling 6,434-yard Skyrest Country club course

Although Miss Riley, a tiny 22-year-old pepper-pot from Fort Worth, has dropped four previous meetings to Babe, she appeared primed to give the 34-year-old former Port Arthur-Beaumont-Dallas athlete a real run for her money

Miss Riley yesterday exploded for the most one-sided second round triumph, a 6 and 5 verdict over another Texan Bertve Mae White of Dallas and in so doing turned in the most efficient job of the meet.

Miss Riley turned the first nine in 35, two under men's par and three strokes better than any of Mrs. Zaharias' three cracks at the 3,092-yard, women's par 37 out nine

Mrs Zaharias, registered from Grossingerrs Country club at Ferndale, N Y gained the quarter final round with a comparatively easy 5 and 4 win over Mary McMillin of Green Bay Wis. who scored a prize upset over the Babe in the 1946 Western Amateur at Cleveland

BOB FELLER SEEKS TRIBAL WIN TODAY

Henrich's 11th Inning Homer Gives Yanks 5-1 Win.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, June 24 — It was Bobby Feller's turn today to aim for "the big win" over the New York Yankees which would give the first place Cleveland Indians an even split in their series with the challenging world champions.

The Yanks moved one-up in the crucial set last night when Tommy Henrich blasted his way out of a batting slump with a game-wrecking grand slam homer in the eleventh inning for a 5-1 New York victory

Don Black hurled a brilliant game until the umpires eleventh when the Massillon (O.) outfielder proved to be the unwelcome guest at a second anniversary party for Tribe Prexy Bill Veeck attended by 65,797 stadium fans

After Johnny Lindell singled to open the second extra inning, Black threw too late on an attempt for a forceout on George Stirnweiss but Winning pitcher Ed Lopat bunted the runners to second and third before Phil Rizzuto was purposely passed to fill the sacks and set up a double play

Henrich then exploited the Cleveland strategy over the right center field fence with his seventh circuit clout of the season

Lopat an old Indians jinx who has defeated the Tribe twice in three starts this season, also aided his own cause by driving in George McQuinn with the first Yankee run in the second

The only bright spot for the Tribe was Ken Keltner's 17th homer over the left field fence in the seventh which tied the score and sent the veteran third baseman ahead of Jo DiMaggio in the league home run derby

Phillies Take Game, 3-2, from Cincinnati.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, June 24 — Danny Litwhiler banged another last inning home run and Hank Sauer hit his 22nd homer last night, but they weren't enough.

The Philadelphia Phils took the game, 3-2, to give $25,000 rookie Robin Roberts his first major league victory The Reds had won the two previous games of the series here

Sauer's homer was his third in as many nights and stalled him toward the all-time home-run record for Cincinnati Reds Ival Goodman, a lefthanded batter hit 30 home runs in the 1934 season

Litwhiler's homer was his fourth He blasted one in the tenth inning Tuesday to give the Reds a 5-4 victory over the Phils

Roberts held the Reds to seven hits, and only Litwhiler got two of them. Five of the hits were singles. He also struck out nine Reds

Tommy Hughes and Walker Cress scattered nine hits among the Phils but the Phils got two runs off two hits, a walk and a fielder's choice in the second. The Phils' winning run came in the fourth Richie Ashburn walked, stole second and scored on Harry Walker's single.

TAMASKA PITCHES 14-INNING SHUTOUT

Limits Giants to 3 Hits as Braves Win, 2-0.

By The Associated Press

A year ago the Pittsburgh Pirates told Joe Tamaska, one of their Class D farmhands, his pitching days were over

Last night the 26-year-old righthander, now with Richmond's Braves, turned in the Chin-Indiana league's greatest pitching feat of the season a 14-inning, 2-0 conquest of Springfield.

The hard-hitting Giants managed only three hits off the Dayton, O., boy the Pirates said should quit baseball because of a sore arm.

The win was Tamaska's second this year against five defeats. However, he has allowed only 30 hits in 41 innings while pitching for the weak-hitting, last-place Braves.

Springfield had a chance to take over the lead, since Portsmouth's third-place Athletics trimmed Muncie's front-runners for the second straight night, 8-7 Muncie has a half-game lead.

Ed Morris, Portsmouth right-hander, scored his seventh victory against four defeat. He allowed nine hits. It was Portsmouth's sixth win in seven games

Lima beat Newark, 6-1, after catcher Ray Starts provided the winning margin with a two-run homer in the fifth Lima's Gene Bildner also hit a circuit blow. Linescores.

LEGION JUNIORS DOWN SHELBY, 12-5

Score Seven Runs in Wild 5th Inning.

Marion's Junior Legion baseball team downed Shelby's Juniors for the second time this season getting seven runs in a wild fifth inning spree to take the verdict 12-5 at Lincoln park yesterday afternoon.

Ronald Larrom registered his second win over the men of Shelby with a six-hit performance. Shelby moved pitchers catchers and fielders like chessmen in a vain effort to come up with a winning combination.

Holding a 3-0 edge going into the bottom of the fifth the Marionites put together five hits four walks and an error in the inning seven runs. Shelby's pitcher Wetz was shelled from the mound after pitching to five men, giving up the hurling chore to Spike Shade, who finished out the stanza.

Jack Daum was leadoff man for the locals as they batted around once and were three men gone on the second round before the final out. Daum reached first on a walk to start the spree went to second on a single by Larrom and both came home on a triple by shortstop, Dick Thomas.

Dick Roseberry walked and Ronald Gorby went to first on an error. Thomas going in on the miscue. George Stoffer went out third to first for the first out, and Jim Setter connected for a single, followed by Bill Nichol who walked advancing on a hit by Dick Wolfe. Three men scored on Wolfe's and Setter's singles, and Daum in his second time at bat struck out.

Larrom then singled in a pair of runs. Thomas walked and Roseberry fanned to end the inning.

Joe Soustlin, starting hurler for the visitors, lasted the first two innings before being relieved by Wetz who hurled the third and fourth before being relieved by Shade. Shade showered in the sixth, turning over mound duties to Soustlin who finished the game.

Larrom hit four for five to pace the winners in a 15-hit attack, issued 10 passes and fanned 11.

The young Legion crew will be in action again on Saturday when they journey to London for their first league game. They now have a 2-1 record losing to Galion 6-5 last week.

CUBS

The Cubs had their chance to win the game in the eighth when Al Lamanfield who issued three walks six hits a wild pitch and a balk in one and one in the ninth got Wagner held them to one run and four runs in a row gave the game against four losses.

Never Caught Up

After blowing the lead in the fourth the Cubs never caught up although Gene Bobzean, who five for six during the night brought them to within three runs in the fifth when he belted a Wagner pitch over the centerfield scoreboard with Schmitt aboard. It was his second homer of the season.

But Gill widened the gap in the seventh when he drove over the left field boards with two mates on base. It was his first homer this year.

Bobzean plated another pair of runs in the ninth with his second double of the evening but he was left stranded when Bekeza grounded out to end the game.

The Cubs made six errors Bobzean accounting for three of them. They've made 18 in the last three games an unwelcomed record.

Joe Louis and Joe Walcott Fidget While Weather Remains Unsettled in New York

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK June 24 — Joe Louis and Jersey Joe Walcott fidgeted today while the elements pondered a suitable time for them to settle their dispute over the heavyweight boxing championship of the world.

Falling like needles on the tense atmosphere a heavy downpour shortly after noon yesterday forced postponement of the 15-round engagement at Yankee stadium—Louis' 25th title defense and he says, his last fight.

The contest immediately was rescheduled for tonight at 9 p. m. EST, weather permitting.

The weather bureau, in a rut about will be staged Friday and so on.

Even the odds seemed to react to the uncertainty of conditions and fluctuated between 5 to 11 and 5 to 13 favoring the champion in brisk overnight betting activity.

How the two principals 34-year old veterans tuned to a sharp fighting edge and the gate will be affected by the delay remains to be seen.

The Twentieth Century Sporting club figured the crowd would be around 55,000 with a gate of approximately $900,000 exclusive of television and radio receipts.

The lone bidder the S. G. and W. Construction Co. of Waldo submitted its bid June 21. It was accepted today by the board of control, and the contract awarded.

The contract calls the company to oil 14.1 miles of the city streets and alleys and the surface treating with a mixture of blacktop and stone of 8½ miles of city streets. As the contract was let on the basis of the amount of materials required the exact figure is indefinite but Mr. Uncapher estimated the total would amount to about $14,000.

Dizziness in the Elderly

ELDERLY people often complain of dizziness because they are bothered by dizziness which is more distressing by the fear that it means an impending stroke or other late onset

More often than not dizziness in the aged is no serious matter or because it is an early symptom it is never safe to neglect

In the middle aged dizziness may be only a mild symptom of the nine main causes it may be associated with headache a sense of nausea vomiting or collapse

In younger adults where dizziness is a fact the cause is more often an emotional or mental upset While dizziness is accompanied by headache vomiting and at times actual stupor it is impossible to take sure that it is not a symptom of the trouble an drug

nosing the former the X-ray is of great help

Pressure on a group of nerves known as the carotid sinus may produce an attack of dizziness These nerves located in the neck are often very sensitive in the aged If they are responsible for the dizziness pressure over the carotid sinus will reveal it by causing an immediate attack

The disorder known as Meniere's syndrome also causes this group of symptoms This disorder results from disturbances of the internal ear

In the elderly psychological factors also may be responsible for the symptoms of dizziness together with headache and nausea or weakness at the stomache Normal aged persons are frequently frustrated by the restrictions put upon them Often misunderstood by their families who mistakenly interfere with normal activities they find themselves thwarted at every turn In such cases readjustments are necessary to eliminate the symptoms produced by the psychological upsets

That in all instances in which dizziness develops in elderly people there is real need for careful study to make sure that no serious disease of a dangerous nature is present Then an inquiry must be made into the patient's mental reactions Once the cause for the dizziness is found it can as a rule be eliminated easily

"Morrow Co. Memories" Title Given Pageant

MT. GILEAD, June 20 — The mammoth historical spectacle which will be given at the Morrow county fairground on the nights of July 4 and 5 during the Morrow county centennial celebration, with a cast of 400 participants from all over the county, has been given the title "Memories of Morrow County". This aptly describes the pageant, as, out of the panorama of the past, the fascinating story is unfolded in stirring action, climaxing with the present day.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Dorrington, pageant directors from the John B. Rogers productions, stated that at the end of the first week of rehearsals practically over 80 per cent of the cast has been assembled. And, according to talent chairman Richard Denton, the remaining 20 per cent will be met before this week is out. "This is certainly splendid co-operation on the part of every one in the county," Mr. Dorrington states, and points to a grand success. The cast has entered into the spirit of the affair in a grand style."

"Settlement Begins"

Among the outstanding scenes will be that of "Settlement Begins," wherein the treaty of 1807 opened up a larger portion of the present Morrow county to settlement. It was in that year that Evan Holt, a veteran of the Revolution, received for his services a land warrent within the present township of Chester, and took up his claim, to go down in history as the first settler of Morrow county. The Holt family built their cabin on a fine stream of water near the center.

However they were not long the sole white residents, as the Ohio fever caught hold; other veterans claimed land warrents and loading their families, their wordly goods and chattels, into high-wheeled wagons they headed west. Among them were David Miller and his family, who yoked his cow with an ox, and made his tedious way through the wilderness from Fayette county, Pa. Together with the John Weiser family, who were recent arrivals from Washington, Pa., they are accorded a warm welcome by the Holts.

Appearing in Scene

Appearing in this scene will be Granger Trease, Bruce Lavering, Duane Rogers, Marlene Hall, Mrs. Edna Trease, Dewey Rogers, Richard Kite, Fern Howard, Howard Kite, Hazel Taylor, Jeff Dunn, Bryant Meredith, Mrs. Goldie Lavering, Mrs. Dorothy Dunn, Mrs. Opal Rogers, Mrs. Marcella Jones, Bertha Utley, Bill Dunn, Janice Jones, Duane Baldwin, Junior Robinson, Alice Lavering, Sue Jones, Ann Dunn, Jane Spies, Hubert Potts, Viola Miller, Richard Young, David Hulse, and Rev. Alfred Nothstine (Chesterville. Miss Aubrey Jenkins and Mrs. A. G. Spies sponsors).

Of a lighter nature will be the "First Wedding" of Sarah Jane Wilson and Robert Mu[illegible], details of which have been worked out, as with other features as parts of the pageant.

From where I sit — by Joe Marsh

They let the Wives in!

The ex-GI's of our town entertained their wives the other night at one of their "feeds" of hamburger sandwiches and ice cold beer. (The girls had insisted that they'd like to see what went on when their husbands got together!)

Being wary, the boys provided chicken sandwiches and cake and beer for those wives who might have other ideas. But though they were grateful for the choice, most of the wives agreed that hamburger sandwiches and beer were a mighty pleasant combination.

After the "feed" the husbands took their wives on at a game of darts, and later they played "indoctrinoes." The party broke up around ten, with the boys agreeing that it was mighty successful.

From where I sit, it's this companionship among young couples today, and their moderation in a sensible beverage like beer, that's won the younger generation such a wholesome reputation.

KENTON, June 24—A two per cent pay raise for all non-elective city employes for six months, starting July 1, has been granted by the city council here. Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

"Hi there, darling!" Dicky said to his small daughter. "Got a kiss to spare for me now that Granddad's gone? I was positively green-eyed with jealously while he was here. You never looked at me once."

He was "playing up," as he had promised, I told myself, and in most convincing fashion. No one would dream that he saw the traces of washed away tears in Faith's eyes, although she evidently had bathed her face thoroughly in cold water.

She responded instantly to his gibing, for she never lets slip an opportunity to spar with him.

"I don't know whether I have a kiss left or not," she told him pertly. "I gave Granddad a lot of them. But I know you're not jealous. I can see you every day, but I can't see Granddad but once in a coon's age."

Dicky's eyes warned me to take no notice of the lapse. But I did not need the warning. After the session with her which just had ended, I felt that if she kept her promise not to mention Mr. "K's" hush-hush message again, she might transgress every other rule in her calendar without discipline from me.

"That's just where you're mistaken, young lady," he said, with an air of teasing she loves. "You can't see me any time you take the notion, and brush me off when you're not in the mood to talk. I have my dignity to sustain, and besides I have a lot of work to finish. I won't be back here for hours. So, if you want any 'lovins' you'd better march yourself over here, and collect them."

She didn't march. She leaped and ran, and in another second was locked close in his arms, her own arms around his neck in a hug that I knew was almost strangling him. But I also knew that he would make no protest.

"What do you mean, you're going to be gone?" she demanded. "What am I going to do? I can't go to school—"

"Perhaps your mother could arrange that, if you really insist," Dicky said mildly and she flushed prettily.

You know I'm not insisting," she told him. "I'm tickled pink to be home. But—"

But—what, Baby?" he prodded her as she hesitated.

"I'd counted on helping you in your studio," she said. "You know you told me I was an inspiration," she finished triumphantly, and Dicky sent me a shame-faced glance.

"Yes, I did tell you that," he said stoutly, "and it's the truth. And when I get back I'll be mighty glad to have you come up there. But just now, I've got to fly. Good bye, sweetheart."

He put her down with decision and coming over to me, bent and kissed me.

"Better get Katrina on the job pdq," he murmured prison-fashion.

"That's 'dated,'" I told him in the same fashion.

"So are we," he tossed back, "but I'd advise you to heed my words."

"I will," I promised, and when he had gone, I faced my small daughter whose face was drawn down in woeful fashion.

"I wish I was grown-up," she said. "Then I'd be in on all the secrets."

"You're in on a lot of them now," I told her, "and just as soon as I know any more, I'll tell you about them. Just now"—I moved toward the telephone—"I must call Aunt Katharine and ask her and Cousin Mary to come back here. They're in Aunt Katharine's apartment."

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY

By AP Features Editor

JACK DEMPSEY, born June 24, 1895, fought 89 ring battles and won 47 of them by knockouts. He drew the biggest gates in ring history and went on to earn more as business man and referee after he quit fighting in 1932. He won the heavyweight championship from Jess Willard in 1919. Mine camps in the west saw his first fights. Often unpopular as a fighter, he became widely popular after retirement.

RAGFISH

By The United Press

SANTA CRUZ, Cal. — Two bathers at the Santa Cruz beach saw a large fish in the water, made a lunge for it and caught it by the tail. They were amazed to find it had no scales, no teeth and weighed 68 pounds. Veteran fishermen scratched their heads in perplexity. Then W. I. Follett, curator of San Francisco's Golden Gate park aquarium, came to take a look. He said it was a ragfish—one of 12 he knows have been caught since 1878. For the record, Follett says the ragfish is known as icosteus semigmaticus.

SANTA FE, N. M. — Scuttling of the battleship Pennsylvania in the post-war cleanup brought back a fond memory for Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, former diplomat and secretary of war. Hurley said he was piped aboard the battleship early in 1919 on an "important mission." It was "to ask Adm. Henry B. Wilson, then commander of the Atlantic fleet, for his daughter's hand in marriage. The answer was "yes" and today the admiral's daughter is Mrs. Hurley.
